

Commentary on the Gospel for Mon, Mar 21st 2011

Today's readings challenge us to measure up to God who is compassion and forgiveness. Jesus tells us that how we treat others will be reflected in how we ourselves are treated by God. How do you react to others who make choices that differ from yours? E.g. your Children? your Parents? your neighbours? Etc. Would others describe your behaviour as one of understanding and compassion ...or would the words they use to describe you, reveal a disparity between what Jesus points to in today's Gospel and the life you live? What might need to change in your life in order for you to be more compassionate, understanding and forgiving?
