

Commentary on the Gospel for Thu, Oct 6th 2011

No amount of money can pay the hard work of a father providing for his family. No remuneration can equal the sacrifices of a mother in serving her children. One of the regrets of parents when their children have to leave their homes is the lost of opportunity to serve them again. Sun is the nature of doting parents. Children's needs are always an opportunity to express one's care and love. We have a Father in heaven who eagerly waits for our call. It will be His joy to love and serve us. Sometimes we are afraid to approach him for fear that we will be rejected. But the Lord is telling us he wants to hear us and tell him what we want. The Lord will not mind being bothered by His children.
