

Commentary on the Gospel for Fri, Oct 21st 2011

We are all connected to each other like a circle in a hoop. Whatever happens in our surroundings has an effect on each one of us. Man finds himself in communion with the rest of the nature and so there's this special connection that binds them together. But what happens now? Nature faces destruction as she sacrificed herself in the name of what we call progress. There is global warming and rapid change of climate. More people are getting hungry. Young people are being eaten by the strong influence of media and computer technology. People who are into spirituality are decreasing in number. If we are part of the whole scheme then how do we make sense of all these things. Lord, open our hearts so that we can read and understand these "signs of the times?"

BD