

Commentary on the Gospel for Sat, Dec 17th 2011

Where we come from somehow defines who we are. This is especially true with our family but oftentimes we refuse to acknowledge especially if there is some brokenness in our family tree. But the genealogy of Jesus was not a psychological blueprint that made him who he was but a platform upon which the great drama of our salvation was staged. That's how we can look at our family—as the ground for our growth and salvation.
