

Commentary on the Gospel for Mon, May 7th 2012

Memory is a mysterious part of our being. We see or hear or smell something that takes us right back to our childhood, and we remember something that had lain for many years in our memory. It is important to remember the right things! And imagine what you would become if you remembered all the things you should forget! Two people can grow together in one home and one of them remembers goodness while the other recalls only misery. In some measure you are what you remember. The Holy Spirit is God's Reminder. This Spirit can heal your memories, working deeply in your past, rearranging, freeing, healing everything there. It is the continuation of Christ's work in us.
