

Commentary on the Gospel for Tue, Jul 10th 2012

The harvest is abundant but those who know how to reap the harvest are few. Truly, God has planted so much in our life. He has surely invested so much in us. But we fail to do a good harvesting. We fail to harvest well our time, our talents, our lots of opportunities to grow and help others grow. There were a lot of learning chances that we missed or we simply took for granted.

But what is more pitiful is that we are indifferent to God's efforts in us. What we often see are our efforts not God's. And because we easily see our fruits not God's so it is not so easy for to share.
