

Commentary on the Gospel for Tue, Jul 24th 2012

Jesus advocated authentic transformation- personal, community and societal- as way to achieve fullness of life, and fullness of our humanity. Transforming our relationships is fundamental to achieve this goal. While the strongest bond and foundations of relationships in his time was family ties, Jesus provoked them to see other foundations to relationships: will of the Father, options for the kingdom, and options for peace, dialogue and justice.

With a transformed relationship, we see the other different; we see in the other a companion to work on God's cause.
