

Commentary on the Gospel for Mon, Sep 24th 2012

If you have a gift and you neglect it (like the man in the Gospel who buried his one talent), you gradually lose it. For example, if you have a gift for music but you never practice it, you begin to lose the gift; but if you cultivate that gift it increases. The same is true of all gifts: gifts of prayer, of intelligence, of imagination, even of physical strength.

Claretian Bible Diary