

Commentary on the Gospel for Tue, Nov 6th 2012

We actually know what is best for us and what we should do, but we easily find excuses to justify not doing what we know. We feel the inspiration and the good intentions that we have, but we lack the strength to begin and make the first step towards our transformation. We have the received the invitation from the Lord, and he is only waiting for us to say “yes” to him. As soon as we say, “Yes, Lord,” then, he will begin to transform us.
