

Commentary on the Gospel for Thu, Nov 22nd 2012

Jesus weeps because Jerusalem remained blind to the brightness of his coming and deaf to his voice. Jesus still comes today into our life, in the ordinary things and events of our everyday life. May we see him in the eyes of the people around us; may we hear him in the voices of those we converse with. Let us welcome him, that he may not weep but rejoice with us.
