

Commentary on the Gospel for Tue, Dec 4th 2012

Despite the great progress we have made in science and technology, faith still remains the same—a gift given to and received by those with simple hearts. Faith comes not after many years of study and research, but as a personal experience of God's love and presence in one's life. God is not a concept of the supreme being or the ultimate cause, but a true companion in one's life journey.
