

Commentary on the Gospel for Thu, Dec 13th 2012

In our world of “super size,” we prefer bigger to small: the bigger the better. We believe that as we get bigger in the eyes of others, the better our life will be. But this is not the case with the kingdom of God, where the smallest is the greatest. God’s standards goes against the ways of the world. How can we make ourselves small? How can we be great in God’s eyes?

Sid Ching, cmf