

Commentary on the Gospel for Fri, Dec 14th 2012

One temptation we, believers, face is to simply and go on believing, but without any strong commitment to put into action what we believe in. We see that we were born into the faith of our parents, or we have been introduced to the faith by our friends or mentors, and just others have their own faith, so have we. But for us who believe, nothing happens by chance or accident, but by God's providence. It is God's grace that we believe, and it is our response that makes this grace a reality.
