

Liturgy Alive of Feria

Opening Prayer

Lord our God,
we hold you to your promise to those who have left everything for the sake of your kingdom and for the Gospel of Jesus Christ, your Son.
Let them be men and women poor in the things that count on this earth, but rich with your love and your grace and with a wealth of friends to whom they can bring our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

First Reading Introduction: To keep the law is a great oblation.

“Honor the Lord with generosity... Add a smiling face to all your gifts” says the first reading. The advice of Ben Sirach is for honest persons to thank God by offering sacrifices, but God will not accept sacrifices from dishonest people, for he accepts no bribes.

Gospel Introduction: You will receive a hundred times as much persecution in this present age, and eternal life in the age to come.

What about those who give up everything for the sake of the kingdom of heaven? They will not only “inherit heaven” but find happiness on earth in the freedom from worries about losing material goods and the inner freedom of belonging to all, in the joy of winning many brothers and sisters in the community. And curiously enough but realistically, Mark adds that they will retain their happiness and reward even in the contradictions and persecutions they encounter in their endeavors for the kingdom. One must remain free and poor within oneself.

Intentions

- For all Christians, that we may be generous in serving the Lord and our neighbor, we pray:
- For those who have dedicated their lives in the direct service of God, as priests, religious, ministers, that they may live fully in the loving hands of the Lord, we pray:
- For all Christians, that they may be joyful people, who do not lose their smile even when they meet difficulties, we pray:

Prayer over the Gifts

God, our Father, with bread and wine we remember him who gave himself totally for others, your Son, Jesus Christ.
Everything was taken away from him except the certainty that you were with him.

With him then, we offer ourselves, that we may belong to you and to the brothers and sisters you have placed on our way.
Let no trial keep us from remaining free and from living in communion with you, through Jesus Christ, our Lord.

Prayer after Communion

Lord our God,
by the power of this Eucharist, help us to see and to practice fully what it means to be a disciple of Jesus:
that only when we forgive we find forgiveness, that our thirst is quenched when we give our neighbor to drink, that we find consolation when we speak words that alleviate pain, that when we break and share bread we will find your joy that lasts for ever and ever.

Blessing

We are in the hands of God, a good God, a merciful God. We try to serve him well and entrust ourselves to him. May Almighty God bless you, the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit.
